SELECTING AND ORDERING

Learning Intentions could include:

- Know how to select and group the facts to form sections.
- To be able to identify which facts and sections are most likely to interest the audience.
- Understand how to order the sections based on the interest level.

Decide on your audience and purpose, then select and group the facts to form sections of the text.

Next, visualise your audience and decide which section has the potential to interest them most – it will go last. The one that is the next most interesting will go first. Number the sections in the final row to reflect the order they will appear in the text.
